

Rebecca is a mom, dedicated community advocate and volunteer teacher with a passion for helping children with chronic illnesses and learning disabilities. Currently, she serves on the Council of National Trustees at National Jewish Health and as a member of Community Shelter Board Women Leaders, a collective community response to homelessness. She has five years' experience in financial planning and analysis and another five years as a legislative aide in the U.S. Capitol. Originally from Columbus, Ohio, Rebecca earned an MBA from The Ohio State University Fisher College of Business, and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Vanderbilt University. She now lives in Denver with her husband, Max, and daughter, Jackie.